MY BROTHER J-BOY

Paperback. Condition: New. 130 pages. This story is about my brother James Howard Meredith. His given name is J. H. , but to me, he will always be J-Boy. He taught us many things about life and living on and off the farm, and how to survive during the Jim Crow era. This story is written to help young readers understand the fun times, work ethics, and the inspirational activities of an American, who wanted him and his race to enjoy all the privileges of full citizenship in the United States of America. Thurgood Marshall, the attorney who argued and won the 1954 Brown v. Board of Education decision, authorized the Legal Defense Fund to file a lawsuit on behalf of James H. Meredith. Marshall appointed Constance Motley to handle Merediths lawsuit against the Mississippi Board of Education. R. Jess Brown, an attorney from Jackson, Mississippi served on Merediths legal team. Merediths lawyers fought in court for eighteen months before they won the right for him to be admitted to the University of Mississippi. Meredith walked across campus, registered, and attended class on October 1, 1962, thus breaking the Jim Crow law which prohibited Negroes from attending school with Caucasians in the state of Mississippi. History records James Howard Meredith opening the doors for Mississippi Negroes to obtain advanced and specialized degrees. On August 18, 1963, he graduated with a degree in History and Political Science. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg,OR, La Vergne,TN. Paperback.
