LITERARY NEWS VOLUME 21

Rarebooksclub.com, United States, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 246 x 189 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1900 Excerpt: .He had evidently studied the instrument with great care. At a later exhibition of violins held at the Albert Hall I was introduced to a member of the well-known firm of Hill Son, of Wardour Street, now of Bond Street, makers and vendors of violins, on whom the name of Charles Reade, when I purposely pronounced it. had a most irritating effect. A converted violin changed by the application of a rediscovered Cremona varnish from new to old had been offered to them for sale; and they had declined to buy it. Here became apparent the weak point in the invention, the flaw in the process, the error in the speculation. If Henry May had could have made diamonds of sufficient size (he did, I believe, succeed in precipitating at immense cost small quantities of diamond dust), it would not have been necessary, in order to sell them, to say whence he got them. They would have spoken for themselves. In the case of a Cremona violin, however, proofs of authenticity would be necessary, and this landed the professor of the art of turning new violins into old ones in a tight corner. An authentic Cremona is worth a great deal of money; a modern violin closely resembling a Cremona is worth very little. (Cassell. $1.50.)--From Sutherland Edicards s Personal Recollections. Hope and Youth at the Prow. Mr. Campbell gave Hope hints about steering, and praised Owen s stroke, then he helped Nina in her search...
