Excerpt: .the family of the last Earl, the father of the gentleman at the bar would have inherited the honours of that illustrious house; and, accordingly, I perceive at this moment that he is supported, in this his day of tribulation, by the present possessor of tho honours and fortune of that family, who has chosen to forego the privi Tliis, we believe, was an allusion to the Regent Murray. leges of the peerage, which would have given him a place beside your Lordships, and with great manliness and good taste, has rather preferred tit sit at the bar with his relative and his friend. Nor is the personal character of the prisoner unworthy of these high and hereditary honours. This is a theme on which it is far better for the witnesses to speak than for me. But I must say, that if it...
