APPENDIX I EXTRACTS FROM MY WAR-LETTERS The notes in diary form of which a selection is given below were regularly jotted down in haste, late every evening, or shortly before the departure of the dispatch-rider. I must not, therefore, be taken to task for disjointedness, and defects in style. The idea of publication never entered my head. When, after the debacle of our Fatherland, I decided on publishing a part of these fleeting past impressions, it was only because they seemed to serve as a not unimportant supplement to my recollections, and above all because they show that the opinions therein expressed did not arise after the war ended, but in all essential points agreed with the judgments I had formed while the war was running its course. 1914 COBLENZ, August 18th. A whole world is mobilizing against us. We must see it...

Undoubtedly, this is the best function by any writer. This really is for those who statte there was not a really worth reading. Its been written in an exceptionally basic way which is merely right after i finished reading through this book by which really transformed me, change the way i really believe.
