Those were the words of Thoreau, as he chose to remain in his cabin on Walden pond. Yes, but hadn t he also traveled abroad, walking out into the nature of the old poets - and even spent a night in jail? Well, there s a fine pond just across the road from me, full of nature - skies rippled by falling leaves, depths pregnant with reflected clouds, distances infinite with enigmatic promise: isn t it as good a place as any to plumb my own experience?.
