Chair Meyers. Good afternoon. Today, the Small Business Committee will hold a hearing on the Administration s and Congressional initiatives to reform OSHA, and their impact on Small Businesses. This is the second of what I anticipate will be a continuing series of oversight hearings, which will focus upon what is actually happened to reduce paperwork and regulatory burdens upon small business. As I mentioned during last week s hearing, congressional oversight may not attract the press interest that some other legislative activities do, but I believe oversight should be a hallmark activity of the Small Business Committee activity. This fall, we will hold hearings on EPA and IRS initiatives. My intent is that these hearings will provide the basis for the committee to develop a report card a year from now on whether initiatives to reduce regulatory burdens on the small business are actually working. At the White House Conference on Small Business this past June, President Clinton spoke eloquently on his Administration s initiatives to reduce the regulatory burdens on small business. He referred to his March 1, 1995 memorandum, to Department and Agency heads, to make regulatory reform a priority. Agency heads were to read all their regulations page by page, and indicate...
