Consequences of planned obsolescence for consumer culture and the promotional self

By Christoph Behrends

GRIN Verlag GmbH Feb 2008, 2008. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 212x146x1 mm. This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Essay from the year 2004 in the subject Sociology - Communication, grade: 1,7, University of Leicester (Centre for Mass Communication Research), course: Advertising, Culture and Communication, 5 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: During the 20th century, the industrialised countries have developed an extensive amount of obsolescence. It has become clear that nations in the developed world over-consume, while the poor in the developing world pay the price of our increased consumption with their lowered standards of living and increasing environmental damage. When did obsolescence emerge, in how far is it planned, and which consequences does it have for consumer culture and the promotional self on a broader scale? By drawing on numerous examples, this essay explains how advertisements are constructed semiotically and which ideologies they derive from. 20 pp. English.
