Salem Press Inc, United States, 2008. Hardback. Condition: New. Revised ed.. Language: English . Brand New Book. This book gives authoritative coverage of 225 ethnic writers that is essential for the school and college library shelf. Ethnic literature is a mainstay of the high school and undergraduate classroom. This revised edition of American Ethnic Writers, expanded by a full volume, includes not only the classics of African American, Asian American, Hispanic/Latino, Jewish American, and Native American novels, short stories, plays, and poetry but many new voices as well, in authoritative, clearly written essays for the student and general reader. It is a key resource for literary and American studies. Scope and coverage: An updated and significantly expanded three-volume edition of the original two-volume American Ethnic Writers, this edition enhances previous coverage with the addition of 89 new authors and more than 500 new works - more than doubling the length of the best-selling two-volume set of 2000. The 225 ethnic writers covered here represent all major American ethnicities and include such well-known African American writers as Maya Angelou, Alex Haley, Toni Morrison and Richard Wright as well as Asian American writers Amy Tan, Ha Jin and Jade Snow-Wong and Jewish American writers Saul Bellow, Philip Roth and Elie Wiesel. Also covered here are Hispanic and Latino writers Ana Castillo, Victor Hernandez Cruz and Jose Yglesias, and Native American contemporaries Alexie Sherman, Barbara Kingsolver and Joy Harjo. Organization and format: Arranged alphabetically by author, each essay begins with the name of the writer as best known, followed by a capsule identifier (e.g., Asian American novelist); a summary description of the writer's significance; Traditions, which lists associated ethnicities (e.g., Japanese American); Also known as names; birth date and place; death date and place (if applicable); and Biography. Pronunciation guides are provided for...
