Excerpt from Reclamation Handbook: A Compendium of Information on the Reasons for and the Development, Operations, and Results of Conserving Water and Reclaiming Land in the Western United States The great Central Valley Reclamation project now under construction in California illustrates the point clearly. It will serve the following purposes: (1) The irrigation of about acres of equally rich lands now inadequately supplied with water; (2) the improvement of navigation of two important rivers; (3) the reduction of food damages to highly developed lands along these rivers; (4) the production of low-cost power for a rapidly growing market, of major importance in the war effort; (5) the provision of a safe fresh water supply for cities and industries as well as for farms; (6) the regulation of the fluctuating flow of the rivers for the protection of domestic water supply, industrial water supply, and of acres of fertile delta lands now threatened with ruin by the infiltration of salt water from the sea; and (7) the creation of recreational and wildlife areas. In the West where the Bureau of Reclamation operates are...
