Fernando, why so serious? the great Columbus said, Bring st thou bad news that thus thou com st, with bent and hanging head My noble chief thou judgest right, the crew s in mutiny, In headlong wrath they seek thy life, and come to bid thee die; While thus he spoke, a crowd was heard, nearing the cabin door, The rabble rout came rushing aft, with a mighty tempest s roar. Where now your hopes and promises, you perjured man? they cried Too long we ve braved the stormy winds and ploughed the briny tide, Thus far like fools we ve followed thee, and now we pine for food, Yet ere we die, we ll have revenge. Traitor, we ll have thy blood! The ruffians said, but all unmoved, the hero gazed around, And when he spoke, the roar was hushed, and silence reigned profound. Speak not of broken trust, he said, the land is there, tis there, I see it with the eye of faith, if not in nether air, Yet hear me now, one compact more, tis but a little space, The night is settling on the deep, till morn I ask your grace. His words, his godlike mien assuaged, the fury of the crew, With downcast looks, and murmurs low, they yielded and withdrew, Then sank Columbus on his knees and upward winged a prayer: Oh! hear me Lord Almighty hear, the land I know is there, About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
