This method is more convenient and admirable than the compass. Whenever the people of Luzon are guests of the Chinese they constantly make merry. Their ships are supplied with oars, and it is pleasant to note how clever they are in steering. The large sailing-vessels that come to Manila take three months for their voyage up to the time of landing. When these boats return to their home country, the nature of the water is not the same, and it is necessary to reckon five months for the voyage. The Chinese have now for a century been in mutual commercial intercourse and peace with them. In the period Kien-lung (i736- 95) the red-haired Ying-kuei-li (English) suddenly dispatched over ten ships straightway to oppress Manila. They desired to occupy this country and to convert the people. The padres were willing to pay them off with presents, and thus got free from the English in a courteous manner.1 The English thereupon turned to China for trading purposes. Suclt are the records of Manila. In a Chinese album containing wood engravings of ethnical types, the Huang ch ing chih kting t u (i. e., Pictures of the TributeBearing Peoples of the Manchu dynasty), published in 1752 by order of Kien-lung, we find in the first book (p. 70), among other types of European nations, the...
