Reviews

This ebook is definitely not straightforward to start on looking at but really enjoyable to learn. It usually will not charge excessive. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

HOUSE CROSSING

Barrytown/Station Hill Press, Inc. Paperback. Condition: New. 76 pages. House Crossing is a book of 32 poems about where we live or, more properly, dwell, with each poem entitled by a different attribute of domestic architecture as it is commonly known: Copula, eaves, attic, beams, etc. Such might lend itself to description, but--reminiscent in part of Ronald Johnsons oeuvre (The Foundations, The Spires and The Ramparts)--in the vision of poet and scholar Laurie Patton each component becomes alive to an actuality beyond physical construct: The poetics of how we hold our ground, even if it is in flux--or as she writes, A river runs. . . below the house. The instigation for this poetic cycle is Gaston Bachelards The Poetics of Space, with this collection a homage to that classic phenomenological analysis. As she writes in her introduction, House Crossing arose as a straightforward observation about the endurance of Bachelards work: if a poetics is good enough, and I believe Bachelards is, then it does not only comment on poetry, but can give rise to poetry as well. What Patton gives rise to is in part an opportunity for us each to live more evocatively in our days and nights in each our own place, building a being, as Noahs ark stands at the end of our hallway. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg,OR, La Vergne,TN. Paperback.
