In Quacker Holler, Tennessee, in the foothills of the Smoky Mountains, the monks make moonshine to support the school and one seventy-five-year-old nun writes and self-publishes redneck vampire nun erotica. Until someone kills her. When a recently fired reporter tries to run from the voices in her head, she focuses on finding the nun's killer. She fears she is slipping further into madness, however, when a new voice--that of the dead nun--urges her to fulfill an unconventional final wish. Carrying out the nun's request might lead her to the killer--but it will also lead the killer to herself.

Reviews

An incredibly great book with perfect and lucid answers. Better then never, though i am quite late in start reading this one. You will not sense monotony at whenever you want of the time (that's what catalogues are for relating to if you question me).
