Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Fr. Jason Clay slumped exhausted into the front pew beneath the high dark arches of St. Sebastian Church, an old blue collar parish in north-east Jersey. He d been awake most of the night, worried about the sensational events which had of late so unsettled his newly assigned parish. And he was bothered by a galling pain in his left side just below his ribs, marked by an eye-shaped pink welt two inches long and resembling a fresh scar. So the story begins. It was Ash Wednesday in the year 2000 - Fr. Clay s fifty-eighth birthday. The parish unrest had begun a few months earlier when parishioner Anna Vidici, an elderly convert from Judaism and a refugee from Nazi Germany, told her pastor that the church s statue of the Blessed Virgin had come to life and spoken urgently to her about the need for people to repent and pray more. The pastor dismissed her story as the delusion of a pietistic old woman. Then, just before he retired and was replaced by Fr. Clay, the statue of Mary began to shed tears. From there the action accelerates through a series of extraordinary events and mysterious phenomena. Woven into the main story line are reflections by Fr. Clay upon his post-War and pre-Vatican youth striving to find himself in God s mercy, and in time as a priest. Within ten years of his ordination, however, Fr. Clay had begun to succumb to the liberated spirit of the seventies and to lapse in his priesthood. It was then that the great trial of his life came in the allures of the young but cunning, lovely Evelyn. Twenty-five years later, she has...
