Red Book Of Chinese Martyrs

By Gerolamo Fazzini

Paperback. Condition: New. 390 pages. This powerful book presents documents spanning the war between the Communists and Chinese Nationalists in the mid-1940s up to 1983, shortly before the modernization promoted after Maos death. These are memoirs of those who have experienced in their own flesh how far violence of a power blinded by ideology can go, a power which, after winning its battle against armed forces, decided to exterminate its enemies without gun, as Mao called intellectuals, believers, and opponents. From the historical perspective these are valuable sources, especially for anyone who wants to learn about the injustices and brutality of Maoism. Only recently have non-specialists had access to autobiographical testimonies concerning the laogi, the Chinese forced labor camps. For years ideological baggage encumbering journalism about China severely limited opportunities for hearing stories of Christian persecution and martyrdom, however, after decades of propaganda, we are finally seeing a demythologization of Mao, a man responsible for crimes equal to or even worse than those of Stalin and Hitler. In this book one can see what a tragedy has befallen the Chinese people, in particular the believers. But all this has not destroyed their faith. Gerolamo Fazzini, a professional journalist, is the...
