PRECEDENTS IN CONVEYANCING, SETTLED AND APPROVED VOLUME 3

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 30 pages. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)570379104 Subject: Government property -- Security measures -- United States. Excerpt: . . . FPS had not been providing them consistently across all regions. FPS resumed the practice in October 2008, however, GSA security officials said that these briefings mostly focused on crime statistics and did not constitute comprehensive threat analyses. Additionally, FPS is only required to meet formally with GSA property managers and tenant agencies as part of the BSA process - an event that occurs every 2 to 5 years, depending on a buildings security level. We identified information sharing gaps at several level III and IV sites that we visited, and found that in some cases these deficiencies led to decreased security awareness and 28 increased risk. At one location, we observed during our interview with the BSC that the committee members were confused about procedures for screening visitors who are passengers in employees cars that enter the building via the parking garage. One of the tenants recounted an incident in which a security guard directed the visitor to walk through the garage to an appropriate screening station. According to the GSA property manager, this action created a safety hazard. The GSA property manager knew the appropriate screening procedure, but told us there was no written policy on the procedure that members could access. Additionally, BSC members told us that the committee met as needed. At one location, FPS had received inaccurate square footage data from GSA and had therefore overcharged the primary tenant agency for a guard post that protected space shared by all the tenants. According to the GSA property manager, once GSA was made aware of the problem, the agency obtained updated information and worked with the tenant...
