The percentage of contribution of metal load from the upstream main-stem site to the closest downstream main-stem site was calculated in the same manner. This provides a percentage of contribution of the metal Alamosa River Upstream from Wightman load that can be attributed to the Alamosa River Fork (Exposure Area 3a) upstream from the exposure areas. The percentage of contribution of metal loads determined in this manner Sources of metals to the Alamosa River provides an estimate of the contribution of metals from upstream from Wightman Fork, EA3a, were determined for a particular area. In some instances, the percentage of metal load for each flow period: base flow, early snowmelt, contribution of metal loads from the tributary site (s) or snowmelt, and summer flow. The source area evaluated upstream main-stem site is larger than 100 percent attributed in EA3a includes the Stunner hydrothermally of the metal load measured at the downstream main-stem site (fig. 1).
