This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Research paper from the year 2005 in the subject Business economics - Economic Policy, grade: 1,7, Friedrich-Alexander University Erlangen-Nuremberg (Finanzwissenschaften), course: The reform of federalism, 30 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: The term federalism derives from the Latin word 'foedus' and is rendered in the words 'alliance' and 'treaty' or 'agreement'. Federalism describes a national form of organization consisting of at least two members, who are joined together by means of a voluntary agreement or treaty into a unitary state having its own national characteristics,¹ but without discarding the distinctive national attributes. Through this coalition the individual / federal states surrender their jurisdiction and individual powers to the unitary state. In return, the federal system makes sure that the unitary state and the individual states control and assist each other mutually when fulfilling their obligations.² Federalism is especially characterized in that assignments, revenues and expenses are distributed on several national levels.³ Furthermore, federalism must safeguard a certain unit from a (foreign) political, economic, military and socially cultural point of view.⁴ Basically, federalism implements an equilibrium...
