Ulysses S. Grant, in the Metropolitan Church, Washington, D. C: Held Under the Auspices of Grant Memorial University, of Athens, Tennessee, April 27, 1886 Honor and shame from no condition rise; Act well your part, there all the honor lies. Here we often see the indolent and dissipated sons of the wealthy sink to obscurity, while the bare-footed, half clad boy, the son of the humble mechanic, or obscure farmer of the backwoods or the mountains, who is trained to honest toil and the practice of morality and the christian virtues, rises to a position on the Supreme Bench, or to be a member of the House of Representatives, or a Senator, or a Doctor of Divinity, or a President of a leading College or University. Indeed, these and other like positions are usually filled by those who have been trained to labor, and who have been brought up with proper Views of the relations which we bear to each other in society, and of the duties which we owe to the Creator; and, in probably a majority of cases, brought up from the humbler walks of life. That it is so, is our pride, and the chief glory of our institutions. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
