Forgotten Books, 2018. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Voice of Ireland Ah, no, we want no part in the malodorous and bloodstained British Empire. We glory not in her pageantry, we participate not in her power, the glory and the splendor of her martial array can not and will not and shall not blind us to the blood and the tears and the sufferings she inflicted upon us and to the Gethsemane of sorrow she compelled us to undergo. We want to finish the fight, the glorious and holy fight carried on by our race for seven centuries and to drive her and every accursed and tainted thing she stands for out of the four shores of Ireland, and though it may still take years of blood and tears and suffering and sorrow to accomplish it, we shall not rest and we shall not falter until it is finally and forever done. Her flag flies in every port, her ships sail upon every sea, the roll of her drumbeat has been heard even by the most savage and remote of tribes, but she has never overcome the undying, unconquerable spirit of Ireland and by God she never, never, never shall. We take our place with the dead. Their cause do we espouse, their principles do we promulgate. The flag that has fallen from their dear, dead hands shall not trail, and shall not droop, but shall be carried on in triumph without apology and without fear. And O if they who were ever faithful and went down to nameless and unnumbered graves for Caitlin Ni Houlihan and her holy and sacred cause, could but speak from their graves to-day when a baneful and pernicious and...
