HYPERTROPHY OF THE PHARYNGEAL OF LUSCHKA'S TONSIL: READ IN THE SECTION OF LARYNGOLOGY AND OTOTOLOGY AT THE FORTY-FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, HELD AT SAN FRANCISCO, JUNE 5-8, 1894

Excerpt from Hypertrophy of the Pharyngeal of Luschka's Tonsil: Read in the Section of Laryngology and Otology at the Forty-Fifth Annual Meeting of the American Medical Association, Held at San Francisco, June 5-8, 1894 The affection nearly always develops in infancy or early childhood. From the ages of the patients recorded, it appears that the disease is most frequent in children between the ages of 2 and 15; 54 per cent. Being observed between the second and eighth year and 87 per cent. Between the ninth and sixteenth. But the affection is also seen in Older persons. Seven cases were found between the ages of 18 and 25, and one each at the ages of 26 and 87 respectively. These results differ widely from Meyer's, who observed less than 87 per cent. Under 10 years of age, and less than 62 per cent. All told under 15. They differ even more widely from Bosworth's statistics which show less than 80 per cent. Under 15 years of age. The difference is probably to be explained by the fact that I have ignored cases in which the growth had not attained sufficient size to cause the patient inconvenience, or had atrophied to such an extent as to have become unimportant.
