Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Moors School at Old District No; 2, Groton, Massachusetts: The Story of a District School In the rural district the teacher becomes an intimate friend of the parents of her pupils, more often living in their homes and learns of their hopes for their offspring and is fully in sympathy with the sentiment as expressed in the frontispiece of the New England primer of 1836. Children, like tender osiers, take the bow. And as they first are fashioned always grow; For what we learn in youth, to that alone. In ages, we are by second nature prone. The ungraded school is an institution dating from the early days of the settlement of this country and in the new colonies after 1700 that institution known as a traveling school, succeeded the old dame school. Under this arrangement the outlying districts were given a schoolmaster or mistress who went about gathering in various farm houses a few pupils who were taught the rudiments of the three R's - Reading, Writing and Arithmetic. Shortly after 1700, there was less interest in educational matters than in the Pilgrim days, especially in the interior towns. The New England primer was quite an advance as a text book over the school book of the Pilgrim days, which was one book for the whole school, the old English hornbook. This was a single card, containing the alphabet and a few simple arithmetic tables, and the whole covered with a transparent sheet of horn to protect it from the inquisitive fingers of aspiring youth, who resorted to it for instruction where it hung suspended by a string from the wall. This is...
