Daedalus Verlag Jun 2007, 2007. Taschenbuch. Condition: Neu. Neuware - It is with eager anticipation that not only the book trade had been looking forward for years to the publication of the book filling all Münsteraners with enthusiasm and winning over all those who come to visit the charming capital of Westphalia: The Münsterbook. Only three months after its first publication, the second edition left the printing press. It's now, just another four months later and just in time for the start of the 'Sculpture Projects '07', that the book's English version has been launched. Authors Christa Farwick and Adam Riese are more than happy about the encouraging response: 'We put a lot of lifeblood into this book, so we certainly highly appreciate the enthusiasm.' The translators of the English version, Jörg W. Rademacher (Gelehrtes Münster und rundum), formerly of Münster, and David Pierce (Reading Joyce) from Münster's twin city York, have brilliantly mastered both to do justice to the authors' love for Münster and catch their humorous and witty style. Now also visitors to Münster from abroad can enjoy this informative as well as entertaining portrait of the city. It's due to their expert inside knowledge and their treasure trove of experience that both authors could draw on almost unlimited resources: 'We had been collecting a great deal of stories for years. This is why we could create this blend of the typical and the unusual that entertains tourists and amazes even old-time Münsteraners.' Farwick and Riese indeed cover a lot of ground ranging from the gruesome history of the Anabaptists' rule of terror to the pulsating life at Münster's places of interest of today. The tours of 'Altstadt', of 'Kreuz-' and 'Hafenviertel' are packed with notes of neighbourhood specialties. Additionally, there are amusing stories about local celebrities...
