Excerpt from British Almanac Containing Astronomical, Official and Other Information Relating to the British Isles, the Dominions Oversea and Foreign Countries, Vol. 3 Explanation of the column headed Thermometrical Register. The Thermometrical Register commences with Nov. 1858, and closes with Oct. 1859, inclusive. These registers have been carefully copied from those made at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, and which are also deposited with the Royal Society. They show the highest and lowest ranges within each twenty-four hours, from twelve different readings. Each month is placed with its corresponding month, as affording the most ready and advantageous means of comparison, although by this arrangement the register of the last two months of 1858 follows the ten months of 1859, which are all we can give up to the day of publication. Explanation of the columns headed Length of day, Day s increase or decrease, Day breaks and Twilight ends The column headed Length of day contains the number of hours and minutes between sunrise and sunset. The column headed Day s increase expresses the number of hours and minutes which the day has increased since the shortest day; and, where the column is headed Day s decrease, it expresses the number of hours and minutes which the day has decreased since the longest day; for example, the length of the longest day in 1860 is put down in the column Length of day at 16h. 34m.; and on the 6th of July following we find that the length of the day, or the number of hours and minutes between sunrise and sunset, is set down at 16h. 23m.; hence the day has decreased 11m. since the longest day, and, accordingly, in the...
