Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Methods of Handling Fish, Vol. 2: Instructions in Curing and Packing Pickled Mackerel When set gill-nets are used for catching mackerel, any fish caught should be taken from them at least once every day. it sometimes happens, however, that owing to weather conditions or other causes, set nets cannot be fished every day. The result in such a case is that a proportion of the catch will have remained dead in the nets for two or more days. Such fish are in bad condition before they leave the water, and no amount of ordinary care in curing will make them firm and white as they should be. Fishermen should, therefore, give particular attention to seeing that when this occurs the soft or drowned fish are separated from the fresh Or good ones.
