Excerpt from The Dental Advertiser, 1899, Vol. 20: A Quarterly Journal, Devoted to the Advancement of the Dental Profession At all times, and more particularly at the present day, there have been men who have made causes of decay of the teeth, or dental. Caries as it was called, the object of their investigations, and to devise means and ways for preventing these pathological conditions. Many theories of more or less value concerning these diseases have been sent into the world some were adopted to be replaced by Others, some perished shortly after their introduction; the greater number, how ever, demonstrated their inefficiency, and a few, which were premature, escaped observation.
