Booklocker.com, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . A real account of Javier Soto s journey of life in foster care. Javier was born in Spanish Harlem (1972) to a 16-year-old Puerto Rican mother and 24-year-old Black father during a period in America when this was considered taboo. Removed from his mother s home along with his sisters due to a suspicious fire allegedly set by his mother, and with a father serving prison time, Javier and his two sisters enter foster care. Their first stop is the Catholic Home Bureau. Survival at all cost becomes Javier s mantra as he is moved from one home to the next and, along the way, he meets others that have similar backgrounds. Soon, he outgrows foster homes and a chance to be adopted, and is placed in Children s Village, and then Pleasantville Cottage School (a home for the emotionally disturbed). What should be your normal teenage angst and growing pains? Like others, his angst is compiled with rage, self-loathing, depression, suicidal thoughts, and juvenile delinquency. Javier tells his story with honesty and brutality while he wonders how it will end for him?.
