In some districts there are three grades, in others, two, according to the convenience of the buildings. The Committee are satisfied that better results have been secured by the introduction of the system, as is proved by the admissions to the Grammar Schools. The several Primary Schools have also been arranged into six districts, and each district put under the care of a joint sub-committee, after the manner of the Grammar Schools. This was thought preferable to having each school under the sole care of one member of the Committee, as before.
