BEDERN HALL AND THE VICARS CHORAL OF YORK MINSTER (EXPLORING YORK)

York Archaeological Trust, 2004. Soft cover. Condition: New. 40 pages : colour illustrations, maps ; 21 x 21 cm. The first in a new series of popular guide books. In the middle ages York Minster's Vicars Choral had their college residence in Bedern, where up to 36 singing priests, the deputies for the Minster's canons, lived together in a communal life centred on their chapel and their common hall. Their buried remains were discovered by York Archaeological Trust in a mammoth series of excavations before the area was redeveloped. Their chapel and hall both still stand, and they too have been studied, revealing that Bedern Hall, in particular, was a splendid building, its impressive medieval timber roof, window tracery and the remains of what may have been the earliest fan-vaulted bay-window in England still survive. It now serves as the Guild Hall for three of York's guilds, the Freemen of the City of York, The York Guild of Building and The Company of Cordwainers.
