Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Course of Study in Princeton College: A Report by the President to the Board of Trustees of the College of New Jersey, November 8, 1877 In the Junior Year the student enters on fresh subjects, and often feels as if a new world were opened to him. He is now introduced to Mental Science, to Psychology; Logic, Metaphysics, and also History and Natural Theology while in Physical Science he has Mechanics, Physics and Physical Geography (or Geology). There is here a fine mixture of Mental and Material Sciences adapted to the varied faculties of the mind, fitted to enlarge it, and to keep it from being narrow and one - Sided. The student, while he has new fields thrown open to him, has still to pursue certain of his old studies. He has to elect two out of four subjects, v Mathematics, Greek, Latin, French and German, going on to advanced departments of these studies. He has still to take English, but in the higher form of English Literature. Instruction is given to the Junior Class by means of Lectures, Text Books and Recitations. In this way the students are brought into constant contact with their professors, each of whom has his defined subject. In the Senior Year there are certain studies required all of them of a fundamental character, viz About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
