Sufficient moisture is thus conserved for a dry year, and not too much for a wet one. There are few or no weeds, as all the seeds near the surface have germinated and been killed. For the past fourteen years the best and cleanest grain has been grown on fallow worked this way. This method is generally applicable in Eastern Assiniboia, but needs to be somewhat modified in portions of Alberta and Saskatchewan, where the conditions of moisture are usually different. The modifications needed are given by Mr. Mackay, as he gains experience from time to time in his annual report. Indian Head Experimental Station. At the experimental farm at Indian Head, the crops have been heavier this year than ever before. The highest yielding wheat in the experimental plots there this season was the Mason, a cross between Colorado and Gehun, which gave at the rate of sixty-seven bushels per acre. The Huron, a cross between the Red Fife and Ladoga, came next with 66 bushels and 40 pounds. There were 71 varieties of wheat in the trial plots at the experimental farms this year, and the average of the whole of them at Indian Head was 55 bushels 49 pounds per acre. Wheat. - In the field crops the Preston wheat gave the largest yield. A five acre field of this variety averaged on summer fallowed land of bushels, 54 pounds per acre...
