Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . This is an account of what the middle of loss looks like: the loss of a beloved parent, a job, a professional identity, and a home. This is neither a detailed history of the beginning of those losses nor their end- the final outcome is still a work in progress. This is about the scary, mushy, black middle, after all the disasters have already come crashing down and you are forced to step into and over the debris every time you force yourself to get out of bed in the morning. In between are people with a range of motivations, many combining some of the elements from both ends. As for me, I was somewhat of an outlier, motivated by neither end of the spectrum. I was simply running away. I suspect I was not the first pilgrim to seek an escape into the anonymity and in-the-moment demands of life on the Camino nor will I be the last to discover that at...
