They're caught in a lake effect blizzard, and, half-frozen, they tumble through Jubilee Reynolds's door. Jubilee is a young widow--alone in her home, alone in her life. She gets the three friends warmed up, feeds them, and puts them up for the night. When they leave in the morning, each of them is thinking of seeing Jubilee again. And she is thinking of them. In a week's time, each of the men shows up again, unexpected, unannounced, and unaware that the others were coming. They each want to repay Jubilee for rescuing them, and they each want her. Jubilee is already attached to them all. She can't choose--even when Henry says he's not willing to share. But Keith and Brody know their buddy. When they make their love for her public, at Henry's own New Year's Eve party, Henry can't resist.  A Siren Erotic Romance.
