American Bar Association, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Section 47 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the Code), allows taxpayers to claim a credit (the Rehabilitation Tax Credit) for certain expenses incurred in connection with the rehabilitation of older or historic buildings. The amount of the credit is 20 percent of the qualified rehabilitation expenditures incurred in connection with a certified rehabilitation of a certified historic structure or 10 percent of the qualified rehabilitation expenditures incurred with respect to a nonresidential building placed in service before 1936. A certified historic structure is a building that either is listed as such in the National Register of Historic Places (the National Register) or is located in a registered historic district and is certified by the Secretary of the Interior (the Secretary), acting through the National Park Service (the NPS), as being of historic significance to the district. A registered historic district includes any district listed in the National Register, as well as a district statutorily designated by a state or local government, provided that the relevant statute has been certified by the Secretary as incorporating proper criteria for substantially achieving the purpose of preserving and rehabilitating historically significant buildings, and the district is certified by the Secretary as satisfying substantially all of the requirements for the listing of districts in the National Register. The Beginner's Guide to the Rehabilitation Tax Credit will help with your first application, allocation, closing, property - whichever role brings you to this industry.
