Excerpt from Organization and Operation of Farms in the Claypan Area of Southern Illinois: With Special Reference to Wayne County Even though the management is good, crops on these soils suffer noticeably from a deficiency of moisture after 10 or 15 rainless days. In the absence of open drainage ditches, water stands on the level or nearly-level land for several days after a heavy rainfall. Because there is only a short period in the spring when these soils are not too wet or too dry to work, timeliness of operations is essential for Successful grain production. If soil conservation practices are not used where there is considerable slope, water runs off rapidly and often causes serious erosion.
