Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Some Notes on the Solution of Tactical Problems: Departments of Military Art the Army Service Schools In the field, tactical problems of greater or lesser importance are continually being solved by officers of all ranks, from the supreme command down through the intermediate grades to that of captain, and even within the company by those in charge of its patrols, its pickets, and its other detachments. Every time the captain deploys his company, except at a merely mechanical drill, every time he stations his company as an outpost or as a support thereof, every time he is assigned a task on the general duty of security, or makes any new dispositions therein, he is compelled to arrive at a tactical decision, which can be reached only by the solution of a new problem. That problem may be solved without much conscious use of reason; but in any case, however simple the process, the process nevertheless is there. And as one goes up in the hierarchy of rank, the problems presented for solution are of constantly increasing importance, if not, of frequency. Unless there has been extended training in the solution of problems, even the simplest one is liable to strike vacant the mind of the one who is suddenly confronted with the responsibility for its solution. Who has not seen the untrained officer, in the face of such a necessity, utterly unable to grasp any idea as to his proper action? And yet the solution may be tactically so simple as to be solved instantly by the trained mind and almost by intuition.
