Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Social Adaptation, Vol. 14: A Study in the Development of the Doctrine of Adaptation as a Theory of Social Progress The doctrine of biological evaluation did not originate with Darwin or with any other modern scientist. It is as old as human speculation. Darwins supreme contribution was his positive proof that the method of evolution was the method of natural selection, of trial and rejection, of extermination and survival. Since his day biological evolution has meant a definite process capable of being studied in detail, tested and verified. Before his time it was only a generalization, a guess as to how things might very well have been, without any definite proof that they were actually so. The concept of social evolution has gone through, or is going through, a similar course of development. This concept also is as old as human speculation. It has generally been, however, only a vague speculation, a guess as to how things socially might conceivably have come about, a vague idea of an unfolding process. A little more definiteness has...
