Not illustrated. 1897 Excerpt: .the children relieved from the excitement of an evening gathering, and it was a very satisfactory afternoon. On Wednesday morning at nine o clock was our students love feast. As is always the case, it was one of the most delightful gatherings of our Commencement season. The four rooms were thrown into one by the uplifted doors, and after devotions, which were conducted by our pastor, we had a fine address by Dr. Wechsler, the Jewish Rabbi of the city, He is a broad-minded man, of deep learning, and greatly interested in the development of the negro race. Our pupils are always greatly interested in his talks. After two hours spent in the school building, and no one seemed weary, the audience went to the chapel, where the examination papers, the tabulated class work, the kindergarten work, and the work of the sewing classes, were all displayed, and were inspected and admired by every one. The rabbi was eager to keep some of the papers, and was permitted to do so by the pupils. There were over three hundred articles from the sewing classes, consisting of quilts and simple articles by the little ones, dresses, waists, aprons, and some exquisite needle work by the older girls. There were two entire wardrobes for little ones, one for an infant and one an older child. It seems to me home lessons of this kind are needed, enabling these older girls to assist in the proper dressing of younger...
