On that day Governor Gist, of South Carolina, wrote a confidential circular-letter to the governors of what were commonly called the Cotton States, suggesting secession from the Union, as soon as it was ascertained that a majority of Lincoln electors were chosen at the then pending presidential election. The morning of November 7th brought the certain news of the election of Lincoln and Hamlin on the previous day, and the rejoicings which would have been uttered throughout the South over their defeat, became jubulations, that their success offered the long-coveted pretext for disunion. The South Carolina Convention met December 17, 1860, and on the fourth day of its term passed unanimously what it called an Ordinance of Secession. Conspiracy was not confined to South Carolina or the Cotton States; unfortunately, it had established itself in...
