Buyer-Seller Relationships: Precast Concrete and Construction Industry

By Masitenyane, Lehlhohonolo Amos

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Buyer-Seller Relationships and Construction | Purpose of the study: To evaluate customer service quality among clients purchasing precast concrete products from a manufacturing company. Problem Statement: Any buoyant market facing shortages of material and skills, like the precast concrete within the construction industry, is prone to being infiltrated by companies from other countries. Competition builds on the assumption that no buyer or seller has had the power to influence the market conditions to their own benefit. Moreover, all buyers and sellers have been in the fortunate position of having perfect information about the costs and demand situation and all have been free to enter and leave the marketplace. Methodology: The research design encompassed both a review of the literature and an empirical study. A quantitative methodological paradigm was used. A sample of 260 customers which comprised general contractors, government institutions, civil consultants and end-users operating in Gauteng province was used in the study. The coefficient alpha reliability ranged from 0.70 to 0.815 which was considered satisfactory. Findings: A factor analysis procedure revealed five service quality dimensions. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 192 pp.

Reviews

Basically no phrases to clarify. It really is written in straightforward phrases rather than hard to understand. You will not sense monotony at any moment of your own time (that's what catalogues are for concerning if you ask me).
