Excerpt from A Greater Kentucky: A Discussion of the Declaration of Principles and Aims Adopted by the Kentucky Educational Association; This Address Was Delivered at the Warren County Farmers Chautauqua, Held at Mt. Pleasant, 1913 Too many of our young men of brain and character who have the power of initiative are afraid to make a trial at leadership. The unworked and undeveloped fields of Kentucky call men to put out more boldly and to make a braver venture of their faith, to stop dabbling in the shoals of life when they are called to the great sea to meet the breakers, to feel the swells, and to experience the thrill that comes from the larger leadership. Too many of us have been fishing in minnow holes. When I was a boy I used a minnow hook, a thread, and a worm and fished in a hole of water about two feet deep that was under the roots of a sycamore tree that stood by the bank of a creek. Only minnows inhabited this hole of water. A person may fish in this place all his life and he would never catch anything but a minnow. If he does not go to the larger water-s he will never know the difference between the thrill that comes from the feeble tug of a minnow and the thrilling pull of a two pound bass. Many of us have not experienced the pleasure and the profit that come from making three blades of grass grow where only one grows now, from a self-challenge, a self discovery, and finally from a complete use of all our faculties. Too many of our young people withdraw from school before...
