It was the Power of Observation and Metaphor that enabled Da Vinci to give us an idea of the Airplane. As an airplane is biology inspired but not a living creature, likewise The Company Body is inspired by a natural system, the Human Body, though it is not a copy of it. The main focus of The Company Body model is on the perfectly communicating parts of the Human Body working as a whole towards a shared purpose and management viability in a more than the sum of the parts approach. In a full-color book, The Company Body is an organizational structure of ten sub-systems and underlying working principles to be applied to corporate organizations for better systemic collaborative networks and innovation.
