The extreme technicality of the subject, the desirability of making a presentation clear to the layman and at the same time convincing to the statistician and specialist, has made the task a most difficult one. If I have seemed slow in complying with your request, it has been because of my earnest desire that when our report should be presented to Congress it shall contain an analysis of the vast amount of data that has been accumulated, and shall present concisely, yet comprehensively, the plan we have agreed upon and the facts and arguments which led to our conclusions. I feel that, under all the circumstances and difficulties that we have had to contend with, the work of our committee has been remarkably expeditious and that we have well performed the duties placed upon us by Congress as far as compensation for the transportation of mail is concerned. The actual work of our committee began in January, 1913, although in September preceding, immediately after the creation of our joint committee, I personally arranged for the collection of some of the information for the use of the committee. Our official investigation has, therefore, covered a period of nineteen months, which doubtless seems...
