Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Cathedral of Commerce: The Highest Building in the World The wonders of the Woolworth Building are not confined to its exterior, for within will be found a wealth of things intensely interesting, and first among these should be mentioned the grand corridor with its tall, perfect lines rising and sweeping into graceful curves and arches. The marble, with its warm, golden, evenly matched colors of varied hues forming the corridor walls, was quarried on the Isle. Of Skyros off the coast of Greece, from the choicest of costly marbles obtainable there. It is richly carved in pure Gothic design, and blends perfectly with the magnificently decorated dome - ceiling. This ceiling is a masterpiece of glass mosaic, and its rare beauty is accentuated by the soft glow of artificial light concealed behind the lace - like marble cornice at the springing of the arches. It suggests a ood of dazzling jewels glittering in the sunlight - emeralds, rubies, sapphires, diamonds - a riot of harmonious colors, all spread out in golden settings, and arranged in exquisite designs. The whole effect is one of grandeur with which the corridor of no other building in the world may be compared; and it is, indeed, an appropriate entrance to this regal structure, The Cathedral of Commerce. In the sub-basement is located the power plant which generates the electricity needed to operate the elevators and to furnish light and ventilation for the entire Building. This plant is complete in its make-up, and the four mighty engines and dynamos, operating day and night - never idle from one year to another - are wondrous pieces of machinery, the most efficient known to engineering...
