That same upper chamber, we may conclude, was the scene of our Lord's appearances at Jerusalem to the assembled Apostles after His return from the grave; the place where, on the day of the Resurrection, He breathed on them that they might receive the Holy Ghost; the place where, a week after, St. Thomas exclaimed My Lord and my God. That same upper chamber, we believe, was the place where after the Ascension the One hundred and twenty met, and St. Matthias was added to the Eleven. Also we think it was the scene of the miracle of the Day of Pentecost; and there, I doubt not, was the place in which the first Eucharist, after our Lord's Ascension, was celebrated. We are also told that the believers continued steadfastly in the prayers, such as appertained to their common worship; a settled and recognised form, combining, we may presume, old familiar Jewish with new Christian devotions. The use of the plural has been thought to indicate fixed times for prayer¹. 1 Mark xiv. 13. Next remark the unity which prevailed among these primitive believers, These all continued with one accord in prayer (i. 142). This unanimity was tried, when there was the murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration ; and when St. Peter's baptism of Cornelius was reported, and they that were of the circumcision contended with him, saying,...
