A debt of gratitude and a clear responsibility rest upon those whose privilege it has been to enjoy an exceptional influence. Horatio Stebbins, in his day and generation, was a man of rare power and lofty spirit. He was a great personality, with uncommon gifts of mind and heart. His mountainous faith was a marked characteristic. He united strength and tenderness in a degree that made him a leader of men. His absolute integrity, his kindness, his serenity, his patient faithfulness, his fortitude, his magnanimity, his humor, made him the embodiment of the best religious life. For fifty years he preached a rational and reverent religion, with great power. He loved God and his fellow-men. He lived happily, he served gladly, he died courageously. For the more than thirty-five years of his ministry in San Francisco I knew him well and enjoyed his indulgent friendship, a blessing that demands every possible return.
