Excerpt from Roundtable Discussion on the Economics of Health Care, Vol. 3: Hearing Before the Joint Economic Committee, Congress of the United States; One Hundred Third Congress, Second Session Representative Hamilton. We will come to order. Today is another in a series of roundtable conversations that the Joint Economic Committee is holding with prominent economists to discuss economic policy. Today's topic, the economics of health care, is one of the more important policy issues of the 1990s. We are pleased to have as our guest Dr. Mark Pauly, Benheim Professor and Chairman of the Health Care Systems Department at The Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Pauly is also the Director of Research at the Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics and a member of the National Academy of Sciences Institute of Medicine. Over the years, Dr. Pauly has made important contributions in the economics of health care. He was a coauthor of Responsible National Health Insurance in 1992, and he has published numerous articles on health care in leading journals. Welcome. We look forward to a good discussion. The way we proceed is to let you begin with any comments that you want to make for a few minutes, and then we will turn to questions and comments.
