Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . PEOPLE OFTEN refer to me as a tree hugger or hippie, but honestly, if you walked past me you would have no idea I am an Earth Lover. Well, maybe you could spot it with a slight cringe when someone throws something in to the trash instead of recycling or composting, or you could hear me kindly explaining to the girl at the cash register that although she insists I take the free plastic bag, I really don't want it! You might also spot me swinging my arms like a crazy person when an automatic air freshener goes off. I want our descendants to look back at this moment in time and be glad that we woke up; a time that we became about being more not having more. We restored our connection to our place in this diverse system, we rejuvenated what had been destroyed, and we developed compassion for one another and all living things. A time where communities grew stronger and created a ripple affect so as a race we became stronger and took responsibility for our place in nature. We shared a vision. And created it, a vision that would last forever. So, here is my first book, a journey from micro to macro, starting from the inside and radiating out. This book is an insight into the way I view the world. Stories about experiences I have had and things that have inspired me. I am sharing it in hope that you too believe that there is hope and begin to live a life that is more meaningful and holistic; a life that you create and love!.
