Forgotten Books, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Methodist Magazine, Vol. 2: For the Year of Our Lord 1819 Ence of evidence, or to set itself up against its legitimate and well established conclusions. In the ethereal whirlpools of Des Cartes, we see a transgression against the humility of the philosophical character. It is the presumption of knowledge on a subject, where the total want of observation should have con fined him to the modesty of ignorance. In the Newtonian s s tem of the world, we see both humility and hardihood. Ir Isaac commences his investigation with all the modesty of a res pectful enquirer. His is the docility of a scholar, who is sensible that he has all to learn. He takes his lesson as experience of 0 him, and yields a passive obedience to the authority of this great school-master. It is in his obstinate adherence to the truth which his master has given him, that the hardihood of the philosophical character begins to a pear. We see him an nounce, with entire confidence, both t e fact and its legitimate consequences. We see him not deterred by the singularity of his conclusions, and quite unmindful of that host of antipathies which the reigning taste and philosophy of the times mustered up to oppose him. We see him resisting the in uence of every authority but the authority of experience. We see that the beauty of the old system had no power to charm him from that process of investigation by which he destroyed it. We see m sitting upon its merits with the severity of a judge, unmoved by all those graces of simplicity and magnificence which the sublime genius of its inventor had...
