By De Avery La Monte Priest

Lupa Press, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . An experiment in lyrical fiction, The Passion of Valentino Santi is the first-hand account of a material and spiritual wasteland existent in the present age. Through a mix of purple prose and stark verse that unapologetically and violently assaults the senses, a poet-scribe, Valentino Santi, chronicles the wasteland's advent, reign, and eventual demise. And he identifies correctly its cause and boldly names names. We Didn't Feed Love - And It Went Away - And When Love Went Away The Water Went With It -, he declares. Skillfully weaving ideas from differing sources, including The Vedas, The Epic of Gilgamesh, the life of Zelda Sayre Fitzgerald, the film Taxi Driver, The Jonestown Massacre, Joseph Campbell, the Christian Bible, and Jungian Psychology, The Passion of Valentino Santi is a gritty treatment of the wasteland motif as well as an uncompromising commentary on modern society.
